Prep Star Becomes Golf Champ

Dean Prince had a premonition early last week following the qualifying that this might be HIS year in the U.S. Amateur Public Links Golf Championships, which were held at Bangor,

Only 64 out of the original field of 169 golfers would move forward into match play the following day, and Prince was one of 15 golfers tied for the final 11 spots in the match play tourney.

"I had strung together two mediocre rounds of 76-77 for a 153, and it looked like I would again fail to qualify," recounted the Peninsula insurance man and former South City prep star who had missed the cutoff in two other Public Links tries.

'But I birdied the first extra hole of the playoff and secured myself a berth. It was then that I looked over at my girl friend and said, 'You know, I can win this whole thing.'''

But Prince is the first to admit that luck played a paramount role in his becoming the 53rd champion last Saturday.

Prince's 153 total was 15 strokes behind the medalist, who qualified with a 138. But after the opening day of match play, Prince was still in the tournament and the medalist wasn't.

"The luck of the draw, I guess," said Prince.
The first day of match play I shot a 77, but the guy I played shot a 78 and I won, one-up."

The second day Prince played a little better, and edged his opponent while firing a 75. The next day he had a 74 and beat this fellow from Detroit. In the semifinals, he and his opponent ended up deadlocked after 18 holes. Prince finally won on

"But I still wasn't playing well," said Dean.
"There was something wrong with my swing, and I wasn't getting the accuracy out of my drives that I should have been. It was Friday night, while watching the 11 o'clock local news on a small Bangor TV station, that Prince discovered the key to his golf game. "They showed some highlights of my semifi-nal win, and while I was watching myself swing, I noticed I was looping the club at the top of my golf

Prince awoke Saturday excited about finding the flaw in his swing and with a strong resolve about winning the crown. Even the inclement weather failed to discourage him. "I've always wanted to win something," said

Sanitation Staff Seeks Pay Hike

Employee groups of the North San Mateo County Sanitation District banded together Mon-day to request an 18 percent salary increase at a meeting of the district's board of directors.

Employees took along wage schedules showing the disparity between their earnings and those workers in other sewer jurisdictions.

They also pointed out that some key employees are threatening to leave if wages aren't

The board appointed Director William Schumacher and District Manager David Gehre to meet in private sessions with employee representatives to iron out the problem.

The first session was scheduled for today.

The council heard other suggestions to increase suggestions to increase traffic fines, hike the cost of dance permits and to charge for copies of city documents, agendas and minutes.

Herbert McDonald pro-jected a $1.1 million deficit over the next three years, based on the current water rates, and advised raising the rates 18 percent. McDonald was water superintendent for the city until February. He was hired by the city as a private consulting engineer to study the water rates.

Describing his independent study of water rates, Green estimated a $1.9 million loss over the next three years and suggested raising rates by 30 percent to counteract it.

Citizens fumed about the proposed increases during a public hearing on the subject. William Wade of the Westlake Homeowners Association said. "I thought you were after an 18 percent increase. If I'd known you were after a 30 percent increase, I'd have brought more people.

He termed McDonald's report confusing and said he wished more citizens had been able to read it.

Wade remarked that his group was "absolutely fascinated" by $4.2 million earmarked in the report as "retained earnings," saying that this phrase means "undistributed earnings" in commercial parlance

Green replied that the money primarily had been reinvested in the water system over a period of many years.

Wade also criticized the city for giving water employees an average annual increase of 18½ percent in wages and bene-fits, for compiling a complicated rate structure and for failing to incorporate 1977-78 data in the report.

continue the public hearing on water rates until 7 p.m. July 25. City Manager David Rowe said copies of the water report will be available without charge in his office.

The council also held over a public hearing on electrical permit fees until July 25. The staff's recommendation is that the fees be increased from covering 31 percent of the electrical Tucker and Albert Teglia asked Rowe to present fees based on paying 100 percent of the electrical division's expenses.

In a study session, the council learned of fee hikes approved by the Planning Commission for sign, zon-ing and subdivision permits mg and subdivision permits which would net the city an additional $13,945 per year.

At one point he suggested cuts be made in the number of recreation supervisors, from three to two, saving about $20,000.

The budget was reviewed item-by-item, with council members asking for justification on why a new typewriter was needed and if the PB&R brochure needed

"If I have my way next year we're going to go to zero-based budgeting in this part of the budget,' Farber said.

"Everything's up except the revenue," he said, not-ing that in the proposed budget, $360,000 will come from the city and $172,868 will be brought in by program fees.

The councilman said he wanted the department's brochure sent out two instead of three times a year and done on a more modest scale. "I really don't under-stand why it has to be on Councilman Farber also questioned the staff about the number of lifeguards assigned to one of the two city pools. He said that when Oceana Pool was dedicated recently he counted 10 of them.

'That was an unusual circumstance,' Mrs. Jaquith said, adding that some were doubling as custodians and tour guides that day. Farber said it upset him to see the lifeguards standing around talking to each other on city time.

No Staff Cuts For Assessor

The San Mateo County assessor's office will escape any major staff reductions this fiscal year to assure the county will generate maximum local revenue under the reassessment provisions of Proposition 13.

The Board of Supervisors agreed Tuesday to authorize 114 staff positions in the assessor's office through the full year rather than cut back on employees after Aug. 21, when the new assessment roll is scheduled for completion.

In a series of post-Jarvis budget study sessions held last month, the supervisors had allowed the assessor a full staff until Aug. 21, but had voted a reduction of about 16 employees after that date.

Assessor Jack Estes told the supervisors today he needs all the staff he has now to "cope with the uncertainties" of Prop. 13.

He reminded the board that rules covering new ownership and new con-struction still must be finalized by the State Board of Equalization: special legis lation is still pending to "clean up" the language of Prop. 13; and the Supreme Court will start hearing arguments Aug. 11 to determine the constitutionality of the amendment.

Supervisors Edward Bacciocco and Fred Lyon, noting layoffs that had been authorized in a variety of other county departments, asked that a full staff be retained for possibly six months by which time many of the uncertainties will have been resolved. But Estes and County

Management Analyst Rahn Becker argued that many questions surrounding the constitutional amendment may not be answered until February or March of next year.

County Manager David Nichols suggested and the board agreed that enough funds should be placed in the budget to assure assessor's office staffing for a full year with a provision that as employee positions become vacant through attrition, they not be filled.

Estes has promised that his office will be able to adjust tax assessments on most all real property in the county to 1975 market values, as mandated in the Jarvis-Gann initiative.

A time consuming aspect of this process, Estes has stated is establishing values on property that had not been reappraised for several years prior to 1975

These parcels include a large degree of commer cial and industrial prop-

The best way to update these parcels is to "trend" them by assigning a con-servative increase to the undervalued parcels and then making a more com-plete reappraisal later in the year, Estes said.

The assessor's office, according to Estes, also is trying to cope with the requirements to place new values on new construction. additions and change of ownerships.

ffluence-Cancer Relation Probed

By JANET PARKER

Despite a $1-billion-a-year nationwide war on cancer, the incidence of certain types of cancer in San Mateo County is rising at alarming rates In fact, lung cancer throughout the Bay Area is increasing at epidemic proportions.

That's the opinion of Dr. Donald Austin, epidemiologist and director of the Berkeley-based California Tumor Registry.

Cancer data from every hospital in San Mateo, Marin, Contra Costa, Alameda and San Francisco counties is funneled through his office in a $3-million-a-year statistic-compiling and research follow-up project.

Unlike most diseases, which hit the lower economic classes hardest, Austin said his staff is discovering that cancer is more prevalent among the upper classes. There the rate tends to double For example, San Mateo and Marin counties are particularly high in breast and uterine cancers, Austin noted.

"We are finding that some of these things are associated with affluence," Austin said at the state Department of Health building.

A tumor registry in Utah — one of 11 in the nation — has observed the same trend the past three or four years, Austin said.

Another phenomenon the registry is closely monitoring is the effect of sunlight on cancer frequency. The registry has been comparing sunny and non-sunny areas to find out where certain kinds of cancer are most prevalant

Usually, Austin said, skin cancer, or melanoma, is associated with sunshine. One would think he said, that skin cancer would be most apparent among those who work outdoors, usually the less affluent, in the fields and on the streets. Instead, it appears that the more affluent who work indoors and get their sun in weekend crash courses are susceptible.

While information about thousands of cancer cases pours into the registry every year, computers spew out alarming statistics like these about

Mateo County:
The incidence of skin cancer jumped from 6.8 per 100,000 population in 1972 to 12.6 per 100,000 in 1975. It has doubled in every county of the region except San Francisco the past 12 years.

Lung and bronchial cancer increased from a 23.9 per 100,000 population in 1971 to 51.7 per 100,000 in 1975.

Uterine cancer is up from a rate of 88.8 cases among women from 50 to 74 years of age in 1969 to 210 cases in 1975. However, among women 25 to 49 the rate has stabilized at about 13 cases per 100,000

Austin said the latter probably is the result of a high use of post-menstrual estrogens on the West Coast. The rate of uterine cancer on the East Coast - where use of estrogens is not nearly as frequent - is considerably lower, Austin said. The lung cancer incidence has been particularly marked among women — to "epidemic proportions," Austin explained. The theory, he said, is that women who began smoking after World War II are now at the age at which they are getting lung cancer.

Although the registry receives its data from each hospital, it is forbidden by state law from releasing information identifying any particular hospital or patient.

However, many hospitals have developed their own registries so they can keep track of their own incidence rates, alerting area physicians to the need, for example, to screen more frequently for cervical cancer.

Mary's Help Hospital in Daly City, Peninsula Hospital in Burlingame and Sequoia Hospital in Redwood City all have their own small-scale

The youngest of the programs, at Peninsula, has been gathering statistics since January, according to Dr. William Johnson He expects the registry will log about 600 cases a year, including Peninsula patients and those who come from other hospitals to obtain radiation therapy at Peninsula.

The cancer patient's records are kept even through recovery and until death. It allows the hospital's tumor registrar to follow the progress of individuals, reminding doctors of the need to remind their own patients of annual physicals, Johnson said.

If a recovered cancer victim moves to another area, his new doctors could easily obtain his complete cancer history from the registry.

Most medical literature in the past, Johnson explained, has been compiled at public universities and consequently was based largely upon indigent patients. With more hospitals like Peninsula and Sequoia creating registries, a better picture of contemporary care at community hospitals is pos-

The trends apparent from among all five counties' statistics eventually lead to special research when funding is available, Austin said.

For example, the registry is participating in a nationwide bladder cancer study funded by the Food and Drug Administration and the National Cancer Institute

Another study is investigating the doubling of the rate of malignant melanoma in the past 12 years all over the Bay Area, including San Mateo

Sometimes, he said, the registry is able to tie in its data with phenomena observed in the com-

The Lawrence Livermore Lab in the East Bay reported a high incidence of skin cancer about a year ago, but it may very well be that they wre only keenly aware of something that's happening all over, Austin said.

While the most startling impacts of the statistics are somber, there have been some positive notations. For one, Austin said, cervical cancer appears to be decreasing. Apparently, he said, symptoms are being diagnosed and treated at an early stage before the disease becomes fatal.

It also appears the Bay Area may have reached a peak in uterine cancer incidences, based on preliminary figures for 1976. At the same time, he noted, it's probably not coincidental that estrogen sales have slumped locally.

The registry's biggest potential, Austin said, is for monitoring environmental carcinogens cancer-causing agents. Up until now, he said, there has been no systematic way of compiling those kinds of statistics, and many discoveries of cancer-causing factors — such as chemicals and foods have been accidental.

spent on cancer research and the amount spent on cancer treatment, it (the former) would be small in comparison," Austin said.

"If we were to measure the amount of money

"It makes a lot more sense to prevent cancer rather than try to cure it," he added.

Focusing on the cure, he said, is like building an emergency hospital at the bottom of a cliff to accommodate everybody who falls off.

Foundation Is Unearthed

By HEIDI VAN ZANT

Seven archaeologists, digging into the soil behind Sanchez Adobe in Pacifica for the past two months, have found what they were looking for.

Two feet underground lies the foundation to an agricultural outpost for San Francisco's Mission Records in the mission state that the outpost was used from 1785 to 1834 to supply Mission Dolores with wheat, barley, peaches, pears and other crops.

"It's a miracle that it's still intact," said Stephen Dietz, the 29-year-old director of the project. "There are sections of it that are just beautiful — it looks like someone just put it in."

In 1970, when Dietz was a student at San Francisco State University, he began his search for the foundations. of the outpost.

Four years later he was back, and that time he came across what "appeared" to be the foundation. He Behind the Sanchez Adobe, covered over with weeds, are trenches filled with limestone and cobble-

"It almost looks like a brick patio," Dietz said. On top of this stood the one-story adobe outpost, which Dietz said is considered a mini-mission.

"Other missions had outposts," he said, "but this is the most complex of any of the outposts in California. This outpost had a chapel, kitchen, granary and priest

During the digging, the archaeologists unearthed the kitchen area and found the fireplace. Pottery fragments as well as still-intact doorway sills were found in this Two or three priests probably lived at the outpost, Dietz said, speculating that at least 50 Indians would have been needed to build the structure.

"It looks as though they put a lot of care into it," Dietz said. Material for the foundation was taken from a nearby creek and the area now known as the Rockaway The walls of the outpost probably collapsed about 1867, when the first of a succession of owners took over the land. Dietz said. Until recently, the outpost was When Mission Dolores records were looked at sev-when substitute the showed an outpost had been constructed behind the present Sanchez Adobe site.

With a $24,500 budget, work was begun on excavating the site May 15. The money came from federal and county sources. At first small plots were dug as the archaelogists looked for a corner. When that was found, "we just took off up the hill," Dietz said.

The work was hard, he said, adding that because of the hard ground, five shovels were broken while digging. "I go home at night and by 9 o'clock I'm asleep. It's been muscle work." Dietz said.

Working on the project with him and the six other archaeologists were several volunteers.

Only one incident of vandalism was discovered while digging was being done. A few rocks were knocked over one night but there wasn't any damage, Dietz said.

"The people who live in Pacifica are to be complimented," Dietz said, pointing out that he had no problems with sightseers.

Iems with sightseers.

The site was covered last Friday until it is decided what will be done with it.

Originally, Dietz said, the plan was to use the area as a living history center for county school children. The site was to be left unearthed and some reconstruction of the outpost was to take place.

"(Proposition) 13 axed all of that," Dietz said.

'Very Resourceful' People Pull Through

By VERN KROGH The deck, indeed, seemed

Leniency Endangers

The outrage and frustration that many Americans feel about the light sentences being handed out to murderers and other violent criminals found fresh focus the other day in an appalling story from New York City.

A 15-year-old boy admitted killing two subway passengers and attempting to kill a subway motorman, shooting and seriously wounding him, during an eight-day period. Two days after committing the first murder, and before he was apprehended for it. the young killer appeared in Family Court on an unrelated pickpocket charge during which police described him as "extremely dangerous" and recommended he be detained in a juvenile detention center.

Despite the city attorney's warning that the youth would commit a more serious crime, the judge released him in custody of his detention in the state reformatory, where he stole a truck, attempted to run over a social worker, attacked a psychiatrist, raped a fellow inmate, and threatened the director and 10 staff members with a crowbar. Despite this record, despite two murders, other vicious crimes, and his inexcusable conduct in court, this cold-blooded killer, whose name was not released because of his age, was sentenced only to 18 months to five years — the maximum permitted the Family Court under the state's juvenile offenders law

"They put this kid away for 18 months," one New York detective said. "In 18 months and a day, somebody's going to get killed.

A case like this provides another persuasive argument for those who favor stronger penalties commensurate with the crime. Quite apart from complex philosophical arguments about state punishment by death, many persons see the question as not simply a matter of sparing a convicted murderer's life. Rather, they see it as sparing the lives and lifelong suffering of innocent victims, who would not have been attacked but for the leniency of judges and laws that turn known killers loose upon society. upon society.

· Linden and Spruce avenues would remain two way streets, providing access to Grand Avenue. • Cypress, Maple and Walnut avenues would be redesigned as parking lots, allowing for limited through traffic. • On-street parking would be increased by 42 spaces while the number of off-street spaces has not been determined yet, pending an analysis of the city's ability to construct mass parking areas.

In an introduction to the report, it is stated that the design plan was prepared after the existing "Old Town" area was reviewed. "The design is preliminary in nature and should be treated as a starting point," the report states. Final plans will be shown to downtown property owners and merchants next week, and cost estimates of the public improvements explained.

If the group agrees with the plans, they will be forwarded to the South San Francisco Planning Commission and City Council for their review and approval.

The focus of the preliminary report is on 23 acres in the downtown core area containing the city's central business district. The thrust of the report is to increase parking spaces and alleviate traffic congestion.

Grand Avenue would be redesigned so trucks would not use it as a thoroughfare and other traffic on the streets would be only that going into Old Town. Pedestrians and shoppers would be given a high priority as cross-street shopping would be encouraged

"Entire Old Town revitalization should encourage night-time shopper activity to reduce user isolation and vulnerability," the report states.

Alleyways would become part of the parking-shopping area and would be used for truck loading and emergency vehicle access.

The report further recommends a unifying materials and color theme be adopted as a guide for building rehabilitation. Restoration of buildings to their original style would be encouraged.

Another suggestion is that a sign ordinance would be needed and a specific ordinance defining permitted uses for the entire Old Town area should be forthcoming.

Pity the poor carbohydrate. It's been damned and grammed almost into oblivion by those revolutionaries who pinpoint it periodically as the rampaging ruin of

Now, it is true that a diet through which carbohydrates gallop with reckless abandon is a diet that will add weight. The answer lies not in exterminating the carbohydrate, but in taming it. Overeat with all potatoes, pastas and pastries, and sure enough, you'll be fat. Overeat with anything and you'll be fat

A CALORIE simply doesn't know what its origins are. Carbohydrate or protein, the calorie will add to your weight when you eat too many of them. A good reducing diet for the average woman contains approximately 1,200 calories; for a man, 1,400.

Because this is a restriction, it must be thought out carefully. You would lose weight if you ate 1,200 calories of poor carbohydrate. You also would be undernourished, and that is dangerous. To be nourished, you must have protein, minerals, vitamins and carbohydrates for

BREAKFAST APPLE CAKE

- 4 medium apples, peeled and thinly sliced
- 4 egg yolks
- 2 teaspoons almond extract
- 5 packets artificial sweetener
- 's cup evaporated skim milk 8 slices extra thin sliced bread
- egg whites
- 1/2 teaspoon butter flavoring 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon

Line 8-inch square teflon pan with apple slices. Place toast in blender and reduce to crumbs. Place crumbs in mixing bowl, add egg yolks and mix well. Add butter flavoring, extract, milk and cinnamon to batter and mix. Add sweetener. Beat egg whites until stiff peaks form. Fold gently into batter and pour carefully over apple slices. Bake at 350 degrees 45 to 55 minutes or until golden brown. Serve apple side up. If you wish sprinkle with cinnamon and sweetener. Eat one portion and freeze three for later.

LET'S NOT confuse the carbohydrate issue. No body can exist healthfully without them. Danger to the figure comes when they are allowed full sway. The base lie that carbohydrate and a reducing diet are incompatible is combatable with understanding and a watchful eye

If you have any diet questions write to me at The t Workshop, 2533 Taraval St., San Francisco 94116.

Ground beef, favored for its economy and versatility, makes showy company fare in Tropical Beef Ring. The center of this savory meat loaf is filled with a crunchy fruit and vegetable medley.

While the beef ring is in the oven, prepare a smooth glaze combining brown sugar, ginger and cornstarch with syrup drained from pineapple chunks. When the meat loaf is done, lightly saute drained pineapple chunks with slices of green pepper and sliced onion. To serve, fill the center of the unmolded beef ring with the sauteed vegetables and spoon glaze over all. A garnish of tomato wedges and parsley add to the colorful appeal of this company dish.

TROPICAL BEEF RING

- 2 pounds lean ground beef 1 cup cracker crumbs
- 's cup finely chopped onion 2 eggs, beaten
- 14 teaspoons salt
- ½ teaspoon pepper1 can (20 oz. pineapple chunks)
- 1/3 cup brown sugar
- 2 teaspoons cornstarch

 1/4 teaspoon ginger

 4 tablespoons butter, divided
- 1 green pepper, sliced 1 cup sliced onion

Tomato wedges and parsley, for garnish.

Combine the two pounds ground beef, one cup cracker crumbs, one-half cup onion, two beaten eggs, one and one-half teaspoons salt and fourth-teaspoon pepper. Mix well and pat into a 4-cup ring mold. Bake at legrees for an hour Drain the nine syrup. In saucepan combine the third-cup brown sugar, two teaspoons cornstarch and fourth-teaspoon ginger. Add two tablespoons butter and reserved pineapple

Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. When beef is done, saute the sliced green pepper and one cup sliced onion in the remaining two tablespoons butter for 3 or 4 minutes. Add the pineapple and heat through. Unmold beef ring and fill center with the pineapple mixture. Spoon pineapple glaze over all.

Makes 6 servings.

Daly City Police Sgt. Thomas Barner, right, and Officer Fred Gualco recently attended the FBI Law Enforcement Self-Defense and Arrest Techniques Instructor's Course at Santa Rosa Training Center. The completion of this course allows the instructors to provide departmental level training within their agencies, utilizing the expertise and knowledge gained from participation in the pro-gram. Areas covered were break-falls, defensive stances, defensive hand positions, kicking techniques, take-downs and sweeping movements, control techniques, cuffing ments, control techniques, cutting techniques, removing visitors from vehicles, placing prisoners in vehi-cles, baton techniques and offensive striking techniques. Classroom topics were officer liability, hostage situa-tions, prisoner searching and cell block searching and instructor techniques in the area of physical and defensive training.

'Military Becomes 'Social'

Gate chapter board of directors has announced a significant change in the name of a basic Red Cross service. Formerly entitled Service to Military Fami-lies, the section handling those cases now will be called Red Cross Social Services, to reflect accur-ately the changing role of Red Cross in San Francisco and San Mateo counties.

Red Cross Social Services now handles a wide variety of civilian problems and needs. Among these are providing food, clothing and shelter for victims of fires, responding to requests for help in locat-ing a relative now living in United States, answering thousands of requests for guidance and assistance in obtaining help from established public and private agencies, and many other activities.

The name change applies

Marino "Chick" Pieretti is probably one of the few former professional baseball players in history who

Ironically, had the man who gave up North Beach buddy Joe Dimaggio's 2,000th big league hit been hanging around Funston Playground in the '70's instead of the 30's, he would have played for more money than he's probably been able to accumulate in his lifetime.

MARINO, who did put in six years as a major leaguer (Senators, White Sox, Indians) and many more in the high minors, mostly in the PCL, was the Ron Guidry of his day — only righthanded and smaller. While Guidry is 5-11, 160, Pieretti, at his peak, carried only 145-50 pounds on his 5-7 frame. But like Guidry, he threw nothing but heat. Dimaggio once said of him, "If Chick had anything resembling a curve he would have been a Pieretti was an absolute scourge in San Francisco semi-pro circles. There wasn't a Sunday went by when he didn't strike out 20-22 batters. One day he struck out 26 and the last batter up hit a dribbler down the first base line that Marino picked up and raced to first base with - an unassisted putout. Not another player on his side touched the ball that day except Pieretti and his

"I'LL NEVER forget that day," smiles Marino, "not because of the 26 strikeouts, but because it was the first time my father had ever seen me play. Hell, it was the first baseball game he had ever seen

'I was so proud, and after the game he bawled me out in his broken English. 'Hey, Marino, watsa matter you, the other boy peetch against you, he hit alla the bats; you, you never hit them once.'

"I'm not kidding. He really meant that. But, oh boy, did he learn to be a fan fast. A year later he was discussing my pitching techniques with me.

IN THOSE days the local newspapers printed semipro box scores if they were hand delivered to the sports departments. Pieretti would bring his team's box into the Examiner every late Sunday afternoon, and Prescott Sullivan, the fabled Examiner sports columnist, used to collect them.

'Sullivan used to think there was something fishy, recalls Pieretti with a chuckle, "because every Sunday I'd bring in the box and I'd be the hero, strike out 20 guys, get three or four hits, and Sully would look at me and tell me he didn't think a little — like me could do that. So one Sunday Sully sends an office boy — unknown to me — out to watch me at Funston, to check me out. So that day I strike out 22, go six-for-six, and drive in 11

Did Pieretti like to play baseball? At Funston in those days there were four games, at 9, 11, 1 and 3. One Sunday Pieretti pitched the 9, 11 and 1 o'clock games. got involved in some extra innings and struck out a total of 82 batters! Then, just to relax, he caught the 3 o'clock game - without shin guards!

Would he have commanded a big bonus, or wouldn't he?

AMAZINGLY, Pieretti never had a sore arm, except through injury. Yet he obviously never pampered himself, or was pampered by others.

But how does a guy the size of a gymnast strikeout

26 semi-pro hitters in one game?

It was all leverage and just plain strength, contends Pieretti. He had always worked hard as a kid. When he was 13-14 he worked in grocery and vegetable markets, and continually was lifting 100 pound sacks of onions and Later he developed his forearms when he went to work in the slaughter houses in Butcher Town, killing cattle by whacking them over the head with huge sledgehammers. And, of course, he always was playing a sport of some kind when he wasn't working and always was running. His real "secret," he says, was his legs. He would amaze clubhouse audiences by cradling a 225-pound man in his crossed legs and lifting him off the

"BEING FAST also has a lot to do with knowledge of how to use the mound," confesses Pieretti. "That's one of the problems with these force-feeding programs they have for kids in the majors now because of expansion. They're in the big leagues and they don't know simple little things, like how to get proper leverage off the mound. Most kids nowadays think it's a decoration. But it's a tool. Use it right and you can get 25-30 percent more speed.

And of course, staying in shape once you get in shape is also important.

"Most players reach their peak of conditioning in spring training, and once the season begins, they don't really work out. Oh, they warm up, but they don't condition themselves, which is stupid. You notice how many injuries there are during the regular season as ing training I mean you null hamstrings in the spring. That's what spring training is for. But most hamstrings during the season are the result of poor condition. Major league ball clubs could save themselves a lot of grief by hiring full-time conditioning coaches and having them with the club all season, home and away.'

That conditioning also includes diet. "YOU'D BE surprised how many players miss games on the road simply because they're so damned cheap that they save their meal money by eating junk food, and get sick, or just plain weaken themselves by consuming un-nourishing food."

The only trouble Pieretti ever had with his arm was due to an injury in which he developed a calcium deposit and had to have three spurs removed.

He was with the White Sox and in the first regular game he had pitched since the operation, he was throw ing gingerly to the Detroit Tigers, because he hadn't yet managed to break the adhesions.

"JACK ONSLOW was our manager, and he didn't believe in pampering ballplayers. So he comes out one inning and tells me, 'Hey, you throw the ball or we're the form you will we are't hely you all year.'" going to farm you out. We can't baby you all year.''

The next men Marion faced were three of the most dangerous hitters in baseball.— Roy Cullenbine, Hank Greenberg and Rudy York. Pieretti struck them all out, and had to go to the hospital after the game.

"My arm was one big sack of blood, but I had broken all the adhesions, and my arm was fine. But boy, I thought I was through. I just cried like a baby when I t saw my arm after that game."

PIERETTI did unusual exercises to strengthen his arm. Before he went to the ballpark in the morning, he would hammer six big nails and screw six big screws into a wall. When he came home after the game, he would pull the nails and screws out of the wall.

He would lay pieces of paper flat on the floor, then stoop over, pick them up with his right hand, and, using only that hand, roll them into tight little balls. It was crazy, but it worked.

Pieretti loved baseball, but was never one to waste time playing it. He believed in working fast. He once pitched a game in the PCL against Jack Salveson, another fast worker, that lasted 47 minutes.

ANOTHER TIME, against the Seals' "Merry Mexican," Tony Ponce, also a quick worker ("He didn't need signals because all he threw was knuckleballs"). he pitched a seven-inning nightcap that lasted 42 minutes. hed a seven-inning nighto (MORE NEXT WEEK)

Handicapped Enjoy Baseball

By BILL HURSCHMANN

A new San Francisco Giants Fan Club formed to bring handicapped and underprivileged persons to baseball games has been formed by a Daly City

Mrs. Anne Murphy, a Giants fan even before the team moved to the West Coast in 1958, said the sole purpose of the new fan club is to bring handicapped people to Candlestick Park

We are interested in bringing in the orphan, the lame, the blind, the deaf, the poor kids, all those who need help and cannot afford to attend a baseball game," she said.

The new fan club's first outing - already a sellout — is a trip to the Aug. 6 Giants game, versus the Los Angeles Dodgers. Mrs. Murphy and her husband, Frank, purchased 50 tickets, which will allow 25 persons confined to wheelchairs and their helpers to attend the Sunday game.

At Candlestick Park, a section behind home plate is reserved for handicapped persons, with special accommodations made for wheelchairs.

"Last year, when they converted that section behind home plate for wheelchairs, I'd only see one or two people there for the games," Mrs. Murphy said. "It bothered me."

Thus the fan club was formed. Mrs. Murphy's fan club isn't anything like the Giants' Booster Club, which plans out-of-town baseball game trips, dinners and lunches and the

"Our sole function is to help the handicapped," she said, explaining that no trips, lunches and dinners or anything like that is planned.

Because that is the club's lone function, vearly dues are only $5.

The money only goes to help the underprivileged. If someone is interested in seeing the poor and handicapped at the ball park, then they can do it through a $5 donation."

For $5, members will get a membership card in the form of a four-inch Giants Fan Club emblem that can be worn on a hat or a jacket. Persons wishing to join can send a $5 check to Giants Fan Club, P.O. Box 3282, Daly City, 94015, or telephone

Mrs. Murphy said fan club membership is not limited to San Mateo County. "We're looking for members from all over even as far as San Jose and Sacramento," she said.

Now the club has less than 100 members. which has not covered the Murphys initial outlay of $544 for emblems. But, she says, "we have no limit as to the number of members we'd like to

Mrs. Murphy, who says she attends "every Giants game I can," said no date has been set for the club's next venture, but that she'd like to take group of mentally retarded persons to a game before the end of the season.

Willie McCovey, the Giants veteran first baseman, is serving as honorary president of the club. Spec Richardson, the Giants' general manager, was given the first emblem.

That first emblem — and all the emblems are dated 1978, and we hope to present him with many more emblems as the years go by.

'We want the Giants to stay here too. Hope fully, every fan who attends the game will wear our emblem with pride, because our cause is a

The hourglass-styled green is difficult to capture as varied tee placements and distance on this hole are deceptive. The 426-yard sixth is a colorful hole if you like playing 90-degrees left on your second shot. The tee drive has to be long enough to the target area on the far right to avoid having to play over a host of trees on its left corner.I thought the 536-yard par five minth was one of excep-tional design. A drive to a landing area surrounded by fairway bunkers is followed by a fairway wood that has to avoid an expansive lake pressing in the right side. Its 120 yards of water from that point to the beautifully scalloped green and a true distance approach shot is a must to avoid the deep six.

WHILE THE outgoing nine plays through the Sea Pines Forest, the inward into a meadowland of native wilderness, captur-ing the scenic serenity of the land. The 510-vard double dogleg 13th also could capture one's composure as sharp tree-lined corner of the dogleg on the left is near the point of the larg-est area. Along with some well-placed fairway traps to avoid, three formidable pine trees guard the entrance to a small, terraced "College on Your Own" (Bantam Books 1978, $6.95) is a book for everybody. In it Gail Parker and Gene Hawes tell how to get a college education at home; how to apply independent studies toward college credit or a college degree; how to take a speed-up or refresher course at home; and how to pursue a subject you've always wanted to know more about.

On its pages may be found step-by-step reading programs for nearly every subject offered by the nation's leading colleges and universities. "College on Your Own" was written to help high school students gain a clearer idea of what will be expected of them in college. By consulting it college students who wish to continue in areas in which they have taken an introductory course will find valuable assistance.

27BUT MOST of all, "College on Your Own" is a guide to people who are unable to attend college. As the editors state, it "provides a way of beginning at the beginning and working at your own pace through a field of study." It is a book of basic information to help Americans cope with the explosive growth of knowledge in recent decades.

We live in a world of intellectual excitement where new fields of knowledge are being developed to cut across the borders of older disciplines. It is a world that speaks of plate tectonics in geology; of DNA as the basic factor in determining inherited characteristics; of biochemistry, geophysics, and molecular biology.

It is a world that has seen vast social changes, where politics has become a science involving knowledge of sociology, economics, geography, anthropology and psychology. "College on Your Own" is a guide to the person who wants to be a good citizen in this world.

CHAPTER THREE, entitled "How You Can Do It for Yourself," contains a section about how to use bookstores and libraries to obtain the materials one needs. Another section offers suggestions on study techniques. Still another deals with planning your own program of study Chapter four tells how to get college credit and earn degrees in given fields.

Chapters five through 26 present the various field of contemporary college study with a discussion of each field and a bibliography of books that may be studied

EACH bibliography has been developed by professors from major universities to give the student at home the "the tools you need to study the newest, most exciting college subjects without going to college.

Surely "College on Your Own" is a book for the intellectually awake person. It is a book that anyone who can read can use profitably.

BRIGHT LIGHTS

Nick's New Seaside Cocktail Lounge

Dinner and a tableside view of the Pacific's pounding surf were real treats at NICK'S restaurant in Rockaway Beach the other evening. The adjacent cocktail lounge, which was recently enlarged, is as romantic as a bride's "I do." The large bandstand, where JIMMY PAYER displays his musicianship Wednesdays through Sundays, is conveniently situated for dancers and watch-ers.....ROSEBUD'S ENGLISH PUB has just the thing to warm the inner man (or woman) on a cold, foggy San Francisco night. Their piping hot cappuccino, or Irish, Venetian or Mexican coffee is the perfect prelude — or finale - to a sumptuous dinner or late supper.....Vacation fever has come to the Peninsula. Eddie Woodford, maitre d' at L'AUBERGE French restaurant in Redwood City, will take a well-deserved three-week vacation and head for England.....If you'd like one of the best Margaritas north of the Mexican border, order one of these cool libations at LA PINATA in downtown Burlingame.....Besides offering a $4 special (Filet of Sole Almondine) through the month of July, YOLAN-DA'S restaurant, which specializes in family-style dinners, also features daily specials. Being located in the San Francisco Produce Market, how could the vegeta-bles served here be any fresher? And the servings are abundant.... Following a short vacation, LOU O'FLAH-ERTY has re-opened THE DINING ROOM in San Mateo to a brisk business. The regular menu will be offered this weekend, said Manager BILL SAATHOFF, plus Veal Sorrentine, breaded veal steak, garnished with melted ham and cheese.

King's Table Buffet Modestly Priced

One of the mid-Peninsula's most popular new luncheon spots is NORM LARSON'S KING'S TABLE in Redwood City. The price for the bountiful all-you-can-eat buffet is just $2.35. With instant seating and help-yourself food service, there is never a worry about getting back to the office on time.....Among celebrities dining at PHIL LEHR'S Pay-ByOunce STEAKERY, on the lower level of the San Francisco Hilton Tower, the other p.m. were Allan Cole, former singing emcee at Bimbo's Club and his gorgeous wife, Woody, who was head line girl of the famed Dorothy Dorbin Dancers....NED BOW-DEN and BOBBIE STAHL are in the piano bar spotlight at BEARDSLEYS, a traditional dining location for Pen-insulans since the mid thirties, when it was called Bob's on Broadway. In 1973, JACK O'BRIEN, LES HYLTON, and PAY FINNEGAN opened their restaurant and named it for 19th century artist Aubrey Beardsley.... During a visit to Rockaway Beach, couldn't help notice that ENRICO ROMANO has been sprucing up his ROMANO'S restaurant. Bright red and white exterior adds to the already-welcome scene. Makes a stop-off very inviting. Whether your choice is pizza, an Italian dinner (full course or a la carte), or seafood, satisfac-tion is guaranteed . . Besides the recent name change the introduction of TINGLES, a new disco-restaurant, much is still happening at the DUNFEY HOTEL in San Mateo. The latest addition is POPPIES, an informal, elegant restaurant with lush greenery and warm colors that blend with the outdoor landscaping, which creates a unique indoor-outdoor garden atmosphere . . Ex-49er Tommy Hart was among the celebrity guests attending a recent dinner party held at JIM SNIADECKI'S SCOTTY CAMPBELL'S restaurant in Redwood City.

Crowds Flock to Bayhill Lounge

The TRI SOUNDS, a popular group that has been playing for the dance crowds at BAYHILL LOUNGE for almost three years, had one of the biggest Friday nights of their career last week. The three-man band, known for their popular tunes and old favorites, said it was a pleasant surprise to see customers lined up at the door to get in....GONG'S Chinese restaurant, which caters to parties and delivers hot food right to your door, is proud of their "Gong's Family Dinners." Owner JOHN CHANG says these dinners are prepared to please any taste in Chinese cooking..... A special Sunday program is now being featured at TILLIE'S 'LIL' FRANKFURT in Moss Beach. Different entrees are served each Sunday morning from 8:30 a.m. to Noon. Eggs Benedict is the $2.50 breakfast entree this Sunday. German and continental cuisine is Tillie's specialty, which she prepares herself....With the openings one week apart of Lehr's Bocce Room and Lehr's Cabaret Disco, LEHR'S GREENHOUSE Garden restaurant is San Francisco's new "one-stop" center for dining entertainment. After enjoying superb dinner amid the flowers and trees in Lehr's Greenhouse, you can listen to great operatic and European music in the Bocce Room, or dance the night away in Lehr's Cabaret Disco. Dinner patrons get free admission to either the Bocce or the Disco.

Sunday, June 25, the Mississippi Gambler slot machine at BARNEY'S CASINO paid off the largest jackpot in the history of the club. A $50,000 jackpot was awarded to PHIL LINK, a planning supervisor from Southern California Gas Company, who was in South Lake Tahoe for a three-day weekend. On his first roll of quarters, he was "just about to give up then it hit!" Link said he knew he had won something, but was not aware of the amount.....The SOUTH TAHOE NUGGET is not only the scene of gaming excitement. It is also home port for those who appreciate delicious food at reasonable prices. A prime rib dinner for just $5.95 is attracting wall-to-wall crowds....An Hawalian Luau dinner-dance special wall crowds....An Hawalian Luau dinner-dance special will take place Friday, August 25, at the RODEWAY INN, South San Francisco. $35 per couple includes special exotic drinks, a full course dinner, dancing and entertainment. Citizens' Group Wants Brisbane Council Recalled

Brisbane citizens unhappy about their City Council's decision to eliminate 10 of the city's 14 firefighters are going to try to recall all five council members from office.

Representing a group called Concerned Citizens Advisory Committee, James Baker served notices of the recall intent on the council members at their Monday night meet-

The recall notices charge that the council threatened the well-being of citizens hurt the future growth and welfare of the city and consciously disregarded the will of the people by voting to discharge 10 firemen. Claiming that budget problems won't allow them to keep the same number of firemen, the council recently voted to fire two firefighters every two weeks, beginning Aug. 15, until the department has only four firemen, and to train police and other city personnel in firefighting. The council members have seven days in which to answer the charges. Their replies must be printed on recall petitions that are

Church said that, according to the latest count of registered Brisbane voters made May 8, the recall committee must gather 398 valid signatures on each petition to force a recall election. Church added that more signatures may be necessary since the number of registered voters is expected to increase before

Baker said he doesn't believe his group will have any trouble collecting the required signatures. He pointed out that the group already has collected 444 signatures for an initiative petition aimed at forcing petition aimed at forcing the council to maintain the the will of the people.

'They intend to go ahead and do what they want to do; so, we felt the only solution is to eliminate them," he stated.

City Manager Brad Kercirculated. win said the issue is not a safety of the community.

Attorney Defends Cable TV Service

Tele-Communications Inc., the cable television company operating in Pacifica, said customer complaints made at a recent City Council meeting have been taken care of.

a City Council meeting Monday night, Farrow presented the council with a stack of cards he said had been sent to TCI customers after service calls.

As he read a few of them, the attorney noted There's good ones and there's bad ones there.

He said he thought the cards were a better crosssampling of customer reaction than the complaint letters read into the record several weeks ago by the city staff. As an indication of its efforts to provide good service to Pacifica, Farrow said that after a recent public hearing on the fran-chise revocation, the complaints were taken care of
